Christopher Narloch performs the three piano sonatas
by Paul Hindemith (1895-1963) written in 1936.

Christopher Narloch has been teaching at their own studio in Ravenswood Manor, Chicago since 2011. They have over 60 private students and host four studio recitals each year, including one each summer in Ravenswood Manor Park. In the past few years, Christopher has been performing solo recitals featuring the complete piano solos of Philip Glass, the complete piano sonatas of Galina Ustvolskaya, the complete mazurkas of Frédéric Chopin, and now the complete piano sonatas of Paul Hindemith. In addition to performing at top venues throughout the Chicago area and collaborating with a wide range of musicians, they also curate and host concerts at their studio. Christopher received degrees from Bowling Green State University and Viterbo University in Piano Performance and Piano Pedagogy. In 2018, they received the Chicago Area Music Teachers Association (CAMTA) Teacher of the Year Award.
